The Cart Hovel, Little Alne, B95 6HW
Henley-in-arden

Guide Price
£1,175,000

Little Alne is a charming hamlet nestled in the rolling Warwickshire countryside, conveniently positioned between Stratford-upon-Avon, Henley-in-Arden, and Alcester. These nearby towns provide excellent shopping, schooling, and recreational facilities, while the hamlet itself is home to a delightful craft centre. Just a short distance away, the village of Wootton Waven offers a primary school, a welcoming village inn, a local shop, and a historic parish church.

The area is exceptionally well connected. The regional motorway network—including the M40, M42, M5, and M6—provides swift access across the Midlands and beyond. Birmingham International Airport and the NEC are also within easy reach. For commuters, there is a local rail service from Wootton Waven station, with mainline connections from Warwick Parkway offering direct trains south to London Marylebone.

The Cart Hovel, originally a traditional barn, was sympathetically converted around 1990 to create spacious, well-proportioned living accommodation. Character features abound throughout, with exposed beams and timbers, oak-boarded floors, and a blend of flagstone and tiled flooring.

Set back from the lane behind secure electric gates (shared with just one neighbouring property), generous gravelled driveway with ample parking, external lighting, and access to the garage
